

You should not relax the ownership rules for radio and television stations. A vital democracy requires an informed public. The best way to provide that is through a variety of voices to be heard which will not occur if large corporations own all of those voices. These corporations will report on what is in their best interest, not the community's. Any one who thinks otherwise is just deluding themselves.